Inserting lines of code into a shell script from another shell script (or output) I am trying to insert lines of code into my shell script. I have tried both this question and this question but neither works. I have been trying to find the cause and the correct solution for the last 3 days but I keep failing. I have been trying to insert lines of code for testing a script. The lines of code is much easier to debug when its in the correct location and not all over the code. The code I am trying to put into the script looks something like this: #define Debug(...) printf(__VA_ARGS__); void foo(char* asString); int main(void) { char* buffer = malloc(MAX_BUFFER_SIZE); foo(buffer); return 0; } void foo(char* asString) { int i = 0; while (asString[i] != '\0') { if (isprint(asString[i])) { buffer[i] = asString[i]; } else { Debug("Invalid character %d in string %s at position %d", asString[i], asString, i); } i++; } } The problem I am having is that the lines of code are not being copied. My shell script looks something like this: if { -x "$SCRIPT" }; then while read -r line; do echo "line: $line"
