Slideshow (2 images) The manufacturer of Roche's blockbuster drugs Keytruda and Avastin told the Swiss Competition Commission on Thursday that it wanted to reap a major part of the profits earned in the new cancer medicines from high prices in Switzerland. The submission follows the regulator's shock decision earlier this year to rule out compulsory price-setting on high-cost drugs. Instead the commission suggested Novartis would have to curb the growth of high prices through so-called transparent pricing, by which Novartis is seeking to recover some of its high costs to its Swiss customers. "The overall objective is to bring down the price of all high-cost drugs in Switzerland," said Paul Horstli, Novartis Switzerland's head of strategy and pricing. "We are trying to bring costs down and one way to do that is to bring down the price of the drug." Slideshow (2 images) Novartis' re-filed application, approved by the regulator on Thursday, also seeks to lower Novartis' prices for the cancer drugs in the company's top-selling drug, Gilterit, by between 40 to 90 percent, according to a person with direct knowledge of the matter who asked not to be identified as the process is confidential. It hopes the lower prices would allow it to still offer a good value proposition for

With no camera crew or crew in sight, the actress took fans on a hike in the woods during a planned viewing of her new comedy film, "Meteor." While hiking the five-mile path through the woods of Los Padres National Forest in northern California, Moore was surrounded by an entourage of actors in full costume for the film, which was shot in the forest and on the grounds of the Santa Susana Field Laboratory. Guests included actors William Sadler, James Gandolfini and Ugly Betty's America Ferrera. The movie tells the story of one of the few surviving members of a small town attacked by a meteor. The lineup of celebrities brought a nice touch of Hollywood to the outing, but Moore's trek through the woods was completely genuine. Her co-star Sadler said Moore was "very beautiful and very nice." "She was great, she was all smiles," he said. "She looked like she was having fun." "I felt like I was on a movie set," he added. "The way she walks, she's so in character." Prolific New York photographer Jonathan Dano was commissioned by the Fashion Museum at the Museum of Modern Art to create a series of images documenting the true cost of haute couture dresses. These dresses, crafted by top-tier costume designers, are often beyond the means of people who work at a living wage. Visit the factory Designers are often cited as one of the reasons behind fast fashion. With the current emphasis on speed and convenience, fashion is not only easy to buy, but it is also easy to throw away after a day. Many major labels such as Prada and Saint Laurent now manufacture ready-to-wear garments in their own factories and sell them at a discounted price in department stores. However, many of these brands are still headquartered in London and New York. The majority of the $10 billion global luxury d0c515b9f4

In this article I will use an example of a simple LED matrix board to show how you can use the mqtt-smarthost library to authenticate. mqtt-smarthost mqtt-smarthost is a C library that lets you write an MQTT publisher/subscriber that can use your own custom mqtt over TLS. Basically if you just need to sign and encrypt messages when using MQTT, it can save you the hassle of implementing your own mqtt over TLS server. In this tutorial we will make use of mqtt-smarthost to authenticate the connections from our ESP

We have synthesised mesoporous, monodisperse silica xerogels doped with indium, for use as catalysts for aerobic oxidation. The pore structure and therefore catalytic properties of the material could be controlled by varying the initial surfactant concentration. Indium oxide clusters could be trapped within the pores and dispersed throughout the silica network, generating active sites with controlled surface accessibility. X-ray diffraction studies of porous samples revealed that there was a greater dispersion of the indium in the pore walls when the surfactant concentration was higher, due to the larger volume of empty space available to the surfactant molecules. The indium oxide cluster size was found to be greater in the presence of a lower surfactant concentration, a consequence of the higher silica surface area. This work demonstrates the capacity of monodisperse, mesoporous silica for fabrication of heterogeneous catalysts.!
