Alcatel Hero 2 8030B/8030Y Smartphone Reviews Hero 2,8030B,8030Y+Android 4.4.4+10.30Zi2000v1 firmware for free download. The post of Hero 2,8030B,8030Y+Android 4.4.4+10.30Zi2000v1 firmware has been published in June 8, 2017 at 9:17 am.Q: Parsing a JSON response in C# I've never worked with JSON, so this may be a dumb question. I am using GData to connect to a Google Sheets API and parse data into an Excel spreadsheet. The application executes well, but when the response data comes back from the server, it is a JSON object in an array of objects. public class GoogleJsonResponse { public bool Success { get; set; } public string[] ServiceResponse { get; set; } public List Result { get; set; } public int MaxResultCount { get; set; } public DateTime EndTime { get; set; } } public class Result { public string C_ID { get; set; } public string C_File { get; set; } } I would like to receive an object with those four properties (Success, ServiceResponse, Result, and MaxResultCount). What is the best way to parse this? Am I missing something, or is it just best to have my client-side code make a simple query to the server, to retrieve the JSON? The sample JSON looks like this: "results": [ { "startTime": "2015-12-09T06:55:44.918Z", "endTime": "2015-12-09T06:55:44.937Z", "id": "1", "title": "dfgdfgdfgdgsgdgdg" }, {
