Catch and shoot your way through the teams of the "cold" moon. Use strategy and teamwork to win the games and become the ultimate Spaceball champion. If you get tackled, you will go down in history. I'm writing on my new phone so I know I have a tty problem and yes I did change the console after a problem on the first try. My scroll bars don't work and I can't input anything so this is what it looks like: I can be accused of being a bit of a games enthusiast but the more I play the better I get, that is until the day someone puts a gun to my head but I digress. (Just wait until I get to colour!) I am slowly but surely gaining a bit of a reputation as a nice person thanks to my patience and understanding of others needs but I do draw the line when some one in a serious argument in an online poll cheats in the question! So I have been told (nicely but sternly). I am the owner of my own and only running business (if you can call it that) and I enjoy playing a variety of games. When I started playing there weren't many games like this around but today there are far too many and far too distracting. This is why I have turned my attention to gaming as a whole as one of the few ways to still have a degree of normality in a world where all this other stuff is going on. I still enjoy playing games but they are like food, when I want them I'll buy them, when I don't, I'll have a real ale. I play and support the sort of games and genres I enjoy as I am, after all, the paying customer. When I find a few not so great titles or aspects (for whatever reasons) of a game, I say so, I don't like a game without giving the developers or publishers a chance to correct the problems and make it right. I have decided to make a game as my next business venture but I will not release it until it is up to scratch. If this doesn't happen, I'll try and get some help. Right now, I'm not looking at a timetable for release but I won't rush it. Thanks to you, the community for the interest you've shown in my ideas and I shall continue to try and keep you up to date with the progress of the game. I'll begin by welcoming you to my humble forum. For the record, I'm Marcus,
