From: CRACK - Windows · This product is protected by the EULA. 5.20 For Windows.Q: Ajax get response to update value in div I have a div in which I am trying to dynamically update a value with the response of an ajax call. I am calling the ajax call from a javascript object that sits on the body of the html file. When the call is made it updates a particular number in a cell called (id="countcells") on the html page. I know the ajax call is working as I have checked it with some alerts. What I can't figure out is how to update the value from the response to the ajax call on the div (id="countcells"). I have tried various different ways of updating the value but have had no luck and I am still relatively new at javascript and not 100% sure how the this.update works in this context, so I'm not sure if thats the way to go about it. Javascript Code: function sendPost(){ var data = "data=blah"; $.ajax({ type: "POST", url: "loadcount.php", data: data, success: function(response) { alert(response); if(response>0){ this.update("countcells",{value: response}); } } }); }; HTML Code:
