I'm not quite sure what I'm doing wrong, here, but I'm getting the warning "possible cyclic reference" whenever I try to do this in my program: Table table = (Table)this.Children[0]; I've tried using this, but I still get the warning. Table table = this.Children[0]; I know I don't need to cast, but I'm not sure how else I'm supposed to reference it. A: Your issue is on line 3 (I assume you have a property in Table called Children). There is a chain of ownership back to this, and the cyclic reference will not work if you have a reference back to this. You can solve this in one of three ways: 1. Don't have a back reference. Just remove this.Children from the code, and everything will work fine (really this is the easiest way to do it). 2. Use a variable to hold this reference, and replace this.Children with that variable. 3. Have Table accept this in its constructor, and remember to remove this.Children from the code. Maintenance of telomere length in human cells. A major mechanism responsible for maintaining the genome stability in somatic cells is the telomere length homeostasis. Although the telomere length is well conserved in normal human cells, substantial alterations in telomere length are observed in a variety of human diseases. Additionally, the changes of telomere length are associated with human aging, resulting in the reduction of the longevity and the probability of multiple cancers. It is still unclear, however, whether the telomere length remains homogeneous in the entire genome of a given human cell. In this context, we have recently developed a novel in vitro telomere length maintenance system using fibroblast cell line TIG-1, which is characterized by a short telomere length owing to defective telomerase activity. These TIG-1 cells show a very unique chromosome segregation pattern with the formation of chromosome fragments. In the present review, we summarize the major mechanisms responsible for the telomere length maintenance and discuss the applications of this novel system in revealing the molecular mechanism of human aging and human cancers.
