As I explained, what you want is to remove the first, 3rd, 5th, 7th and 9th word, provided these words begin with the string. Q: How should I add a constructor to the class representing a list? I'm using templates and I have a list of a certain class. template class List { public: template List(U& element); } The element may be a list itself, or a simple object. It may also be an object and a list. So I have a constructor to make a new list and one to start from a list and an element. template List::List(U& element) { //... } 6d1f23a050
