Dell promised a new BIOS, and I was told to come back in one week, but the only response I received was a printed invoice for $240 (which I had to send in to see if it would be credited to my account).The only thing that appears to be unclear is whether this is an issue with the BIOS, the H/C or both? I have an OptiPlex 3050 with the same motherboard. Both BIOS and H/C are from the same manufacture, Dell (although I know they change the H/C all the time). Does anyone know if there is a charge per motherboard or how this issue was resolved? Dell Portable Bios And Diags Rev A34 120

Hello everyone, I am using Dell Optiplex 330. and I successfully upgraded it to Windows 10. Before that i followed your guide and after that I installed the updates of Windows. My one problem is that when I am trying to start up the BIOS, it shows an error that it shows Windows: bios and it says that this a system error, please help me. so that I can start up again my computer. I've upgraded a Dell Optiplex 630 to Windows 10 Pro and it worked without issue, with my only issue being a lack of available languages in Windows 10. Other than that I'm very happy with the upgrade, and I'd like to give a huge thank you for the great guide. It failed so I repeated the process. At the end of the process it crashed. I looked in the Device Manager and it was listed as a DELL Computer. So I logged onto Windows 7 Home edition and found the disc that came with the computer. Once booted in the Home Edition I did a repair install and now it is displaying as a Windows 7 Home Edition. After seeing an article on Dell forums by Philip , I tried the guide and got stuck with a weird message on a screen - it read 'MCA-PROM: [Fboard] Disabled'. Not knowing what this meant, I went to search for a solution. I have been running Windows 10 for quite a while on Dell Inspiron 15 (with that UEFI BIOS, not very trusting, one). However the original installation of Windows on this machine was always "install and activate with Windows". I have realized this is not good. 5ec8ef588b
