With over a million different watchlists available you can easily configure your instant messenger for complete flexibility, performance and functionality. Your InstantCharts Messenger list of watchlists is a unique concept which allows users to build a list of various watchlists for trading the stock, commodity, futures or any other market in the world. All watchlists can be synchronized on the fly with the current market price. You can simply enter the market ticker or commodity or exchange and the watchlist will be updated with new price information and all list entries and positions are automatically updated. Watchlists allow you to set your own parameters for all market trading - limit the range of the market price, add or subtract a certain amount of units from the price, define what you are trading, which exchanges, markets, commodities and so on. The watchlist lists can be configured to run at different times of day, to have their own specific pattern and behavior, to be shown in a specific location on the instantcharts window and much more. As all watchlists are synchronized live with the market price, the messages and positions are always up to date and users of the watchlist can have their own configuration parameters. As a watchlist is unique for each user, users can use them to create custom watchlists with a special set of parameters and functionality. For example you can create a watchlist for a specific company where you set your own limits for the price range, the market, your strategies, the ability to use pattern triggers, etc. Besides watchlists, the InstantCharts Messenger provides you with the most accurate real-time data possible and allows you to receive messages, view your stocks and commodity and also check up to the minute the current market prices, news, etc. You can define which exchanges you want to receive trade updates and which to ignore and also you can define a set of currencies which will be updated and your currency specific triggers for all trades. InstantCharts IM Messenger is a secure instant messaging and a market data display application for professional traders. It allows easy access to and manipulation of market data through a combination of specialized display objects and analytical tools, such as Tickers, Quote Lists, News, Time and Sales Information, Charting. Other applications that can be found at the Scriptmania website are for instance the TimeLog, an award-winning monitoring tool that helps you to track and analyse your broker activities and trading activity in real time. For the complete list of all the software products available at the site, you can follow this link: Introduction: A recent development in trading is to have an instant messenger (IM) application for your PC. This IM application allows you to instantly communicate with your counterpart, for example by sending them a message via an e-mail address (if you are registered on their account), or to invite them to a chat. Your counterpart can also enter your e-mail address and IM will send him/her a message in order to invite him/her for a chat. Market data could be displayed at your IM application, for example using graphical symbols for stocks, or you can access market data in a separate application such as InstantCharts. Additionally, your IM application allows you to easily enter stocks symbols, or brokers to whom you would like to trade. What's nice about the application, is that it is entirely free to use. You don't have to pay anything in order to use it. As you can see, a market data display application with an IM functionality can be very useful. If you have such a software product in mind, you can visit the Scriptmania website to find other applications that have the same features. How to get started? A good place to start using this application, is to create an account and register at the InstantCharts IM Messenger application site. If you do not have a broker account yet, you can use the free demo account. You can use this account to perform some trading without giving any information about your real account. Use the following procedure to create your broker account: 1. Log in using your email address and password (these are the same as your MT4 account). 2. Click on the "Login" button. 3.
